H 次の文章と表を参照して、以下の問いに答えなさい。

Monthly Rainfall in Four Cities

The table below shows the amount of rainfall (in millimeters) for four cities – Tokyo, London, Sydney, and New York – over four months : January, February, March, and April.

There is also some extra information. In February, Sydney had a big storm, so the rain record was less than normal. Normally, Sydney gets about 130 mm of rain in February, but because of the storm, the measurements didn't work well and they only recorded 110 mm. In March, Tokyo had its driest month of the year. The rain was lower than the normal 80 mm for that month. Meanwhile, in April, New York received much less rain than usual, with only 70 mm, even though April is normally a rainy month for the city.

Here is the table with the rainfall data:

| Month | Tokyo (mm) | London (mm) | Sydney (mm) | New York (mm) |
|----------|------------|-------------|-------------|---------------|
| January | 70 | 80 | 120 | 90 |
| February | 70 | 90 | 110 | 85 |
| March | 60 | 85 | 105 | 95 |
| April | 100 | 95 | 90 | 70 |

The total rainfall for the four months is:

Tokyo: 300 mm, London: 350 mm, Sydney: 425 mm, and New York: 340 mm.

- Q40 Why was Sydney's rainfall lower than expected in February?
1) A storm caused measurement problems. 2) There was more rain than usual.
3) It was the rainy season. 4) February is a dry month in Sydney.
5) The weather was unusually warm.
- Q41 How much rain does Tokyo usually get in March, according to the text?
1) 50 mm 2) 60 mm 3) 70 mm 4) 80 mm 5) 100 mm
- Q42 How many millimeters of rain did Tokyo get in its wettest month?
1) 50 mm 2) 60 mm 3) 70 mm 4) 80 mm 5) 100 mm
- Q43 Which city had the most consistent rainfall over the four months (smallest difference between its highest and lowest rainfall) ?
1) Tokyo 2) London 3) Sydney 4) New York 5) None of them
- Q44 Which city received the least rain in April, according to the text?
1) Tokyo 2) London 3) Sydney 4) New York 5) None of them

I 次の英文を読み、以下の問いに答えなさい。

Japan has a special and old culture. Many things in Japan are from the past, like the tea ceremony, wearing kimono, and celebrating festivals. People in Japan do these things to remember their history and show respect to their ancestors. Even today, many people in Japan follow these traditions during special times like New Year and cherry blossom season (hanami) . These customs help people feel close to their past and teach the younger generation about Japanese culture.

In Japan, harmony is important. The Japanese word for harmony is “wa.” This means living in peace with others and thinking about their feelings. People in Japan try to be polite and avoid fighting. They learn this from a young age. Harmony is also important at work and school. Teamwork is very common, and people work together to make decisions. This helps people stay peaceful and work well as a group.

Food is also an important part of Japanese culture. Famous Japanese dishes include sushi, tempura, and miso soup. Japanese food uses fresh ingredients and changes with the seasons. For example, in the spring, people eat fresh vegetables and fish, and in the autumn, they eat foods like mushrooms and chestnuts. The way the food looks is also important. Japanese dishes are often prepared to look beautiful on the plate.

In recent years, Japanese pop culture, like anime, manga, and video games, has become very popular around the world. Many people enjoy these forms of entertainment. Japanese pop culture shows that Japan can mix old traditions with new ideas. This makes Japanese culture interesting for many people around the world.

Q45 Why do people in Japan follow traditions like the tea ceremony?
